Highlighting — COVID

The library staff hope you have all been healthy and finding ways to thrive during this pandemic. At times it has felt like time slowed but here we are at the start of fall. Time seems more elastic than ever.

In March the library closed to the public and put our volunteers on hold as the Governor called for a 50% reduction of people in buildings. Since then half our staff have been working from home and the rest are in the building receiving and shipping out library materials. We quarantine material as it comes in, and staff are taking all the necessary safety measures. We are all healthy — at this writing. We are pleased that we did not have to suspend all library operations as some states had to across the network.

We have moved some volunteer work to be done at home and some volunteers are keeping busy. We are planning to bring back other volunteers, whose jobs cannot be done at home, on a limited bases in the fall. They give a lot to the library, and we are missing their contributions.

As we move through the balance of this year, we will adhere to safety protocols and wait for a vaccine or a cure that we hope will move us towards a new normal.

CTBL will be closed on the following days in 2020 and 2021: September 7th; November 26th, 27th; December 24th, 25th; January 1
From the Director

We were sad not to be able to hold the Patron Open House this year and are looking forward to hosting one next year. We hope you are all staying healthy and holding your own during this COVID crisis. 50% of the staff have been working in the building getting books out to patrons and the other 50% working from home. So far, we are all healthy and able to serve you.

Reminder to Patrons — Holiday service

The holidays are fast approaching. Unfortunately, every year the mail slows down and with vacations, there are fewer Reader Advisors on hand to take your order. To make sure you have plenty to read, we recommend ordering any specific requests by November 15th, and getting more than your usual amount so that you have a few extras.

We want to make sure you have a very happy holiday season. Just going to college in another state, CTBL will still provide service.

CTBL Patron Survey — Coming this fall

The biennial patron survey will be going to selected patrons later this fall. Please watch for your audio or large print announcement of invitation to participate.

  Author: J. Colson Whitehead  Narrator: Peter Jay Fernandez
  Length: 9 hours, 42 minutes  New York Times Notable Book
Two warring factions in the Department of Elevator Inspectors in a bustling metropolis vie for dominance: the Empiricists, who go by the book and rigorously check every structural and mechanical detail, and the Intuitionists, whose observational methods involve meditation and instinct. Lila Mae Watson, the city’s first black female inspector, who has the highest accuracy rate in the department, is at the center of the turmoil.
  An elevator in a new municipal building has crashed on her watch, fanning the flames of the Empiricist-Intuitionist feud and compelling Lila Mae to go underground to investigate. As she endeavors to clear her name, she becomes entangled in a web of intrigue that leads her to a secret that will change her life forever.

Thanks to our volunteers who shifted to making masks from home, we are pleased to offer a packet of 3 free masks to CTBL patrons. Please contact the library and leave a message clearly stating your name and patron number or phone number. We will then mail you out a packet of masks.

Electronic Ballot Marking System Available to Colorado Voters With Disabilities

In Colorado, people with disabilities, including the blind and print disabled, can mark their ballots using computers, smart phones, or tablets equipped with the assistive technology with which they are familiar. All that is needed is a computer, smart phone, or tablet, a printer, and an Internet connection.

CTBL has detailed instructions, written by Curtis Chong, available to send to you via email. Please contact the library at ctbl.info@cde.state.co.us requesting the voting document. We will then email you the instructions.

Voters should visit the website www.govotecolorado.com to update their voter registration information.

Tech Talk — Duplication On Demand Service

In the Winter edition of CTBL News, we discussed our new service model, Duplication on Demand (DoD). CTBL was one of the first sites to combine this system with our library software system. Occasionally, we find another quirk or bug in how the DoD system and our library software communicate with each other.

The most current problem we’ve found is that the original cartridges made in November and December last year are counting as 2 cartridges in our circulation system. If you have 2 of these older cartridges out, the system thinks you have the 4 maximum on cartridges and won’t automatically send you out anymore.

We can manually send out more if we are notified of the problem. But we strongly encourage you to finish and return any older cartridges you have as soon as possible.

As always, if you are finding you have this or any other problems with the service, contact a Reader Advisor at 1-800-685-2136 or 303-727-9277.

Tech Talk — Voice Dream

Voice Dream is a suite of software products created to assist those with print disabilities. For iOS, they offer a Reader, Writer and Scanner. Users can also purchase the Suite, which is the 3 apps along with two additional voices.

Voice Dream recently created their app for Android devices and currently offer the Reader and Scanner.

Reader — has multiple free voices, plus additional voices you can purchased through the app. Reader offers synchronized highlighting of the text while reading it out loud. The App reads PDF, EPUB, Daisy Audio, Daisy Text, plain text and other formats. Items can be downloaded from websites, Bookshare, Gutenberg and other sites.

Writer — speaks words out-loud while you type to assist in proofreading and editing documents.

Scanner — takes pictures of documents and reads the text out-loud.

There is a fee for these apps. However, the iOS apps are getting great reviews. From an RA at the Washington Talking Book and Braille Library:

“It’s the best $14.99 I have spent this year, they have an astounding variety of text-to-speech voices and many of them sound so life like that one forgets one is listening to text-to-speech. I used to read bookshare.org books as a lamentable last resort, but thanks to Voice Dream I listen to Bookshare all the time. You can not only get Bookshare from Voice Dream but an amazing number of other book providers and document formats can be accessed...”

More information about these products is available on the Voice Dream Website: https://www.voicedream.com

Having trouble navigating your multi-book cartridge?

If the bookshelf mode or user guide is confusing a Play/Stop primer might help as this button does far more than play and stop.

The green square Play/Stop button labeled P in braille is a multi-function button.

Primary function — Pressing the Play/Stop button while the a book is stopped will start or resume playback of the book. Playback resumes from the reading position noted by the player for the current book when playback or navigation last ended. Pressing the Play/Stop button while the player is playing a book or message stops playback and silences the player. If you are at the end of a book and you press the Play/Stop button again you will be returned to the beginning of that book.

Secondary functions — When a cartridge containing more than one book is in the player, pressing and holding the Play/Stop button for 5 seconds will enter the Bookshelf mode. In this mode the user can select from the books available on the cartridge using the Rewind or Fast Forward buttons to move up and down the bookshelf and hear what is available. Pressing and releasing the Play/Stop button will exit the Bookshelf and begin to play the selected book. The player will remember the book selected even Volunteers — The Hidden Benefits of Volunteering

“Go volunteer. It’s good for you,” How many of us have heard that or even said it ourselves? But what exactly does volunteering do for us?

Research shows that people who volunteer aren’t just helping their community, they experience a boost in their mental health. When we help others, we tend to experience what researchers call a warm glow. Besides, volunteering is likely to help boost our sense of social connection.

The coronavirus pandemic has led to the practice of social distancing, creating feelings of stress and isolation in many of us. During this time, CTBL has worked to keep our team of dedicated volunteers feeling connected and supported. While we couldn’t have them come to our building, during the shut-down, we took work to some of them.

One team of volunteers have picked up talking book machines that need to be serviced and worked in one member’s garage. They supported our patrons by keeping enough machines serviced so they could continue listening to talking books — no report on who supplied the doughnuts for them.

Another team picked up cartridges and cases that needed new labels applied so they would be ready for Tod and Susan to use in duplication on demand. Their efforts were immensely helpful.

A few of the volunteers sewed facemasks by the dozen so we would be ready when the building opens to volunteers and patrons again.

Some staff made a point to call the volunteers to check that they had everything they need and weren’t becoming isolated in their homes. And, sometimes, volunteers called to check up on us!

But, all along, volunteers expressed how much they couldn’t wait to return to their regular schedules at the building. There is no substitute for being with the people who come every week. We share stories about our families, our latest lab results, the trips we have planned, the pictures of our grandkids. These are the connections that make volunteering a boost to our mental health.

Work is essential, but in the end, it is all about relationships.

Resource of Interest —
Healthy Relationships During Covid-19

People are happiest, healthiest, safest and supported when they are listened to and treated with respect by the people in their lives. In healthy relationships, people are kind and check in with you. They respect your choices and encourage you to be independent. But sometimes family members or caregivers hurt or harm others.

During COVID-19, a quiet, unseen tragedy is unfolding for the approximately 1 in 10 older adults who experience physical, emotional, sexual, financial, and spiritual abuse. While physical distancing will slow the virus, isolation is also a risk factor and a weapon of abuse. Like the pandemic itself, abuse can be a matter of life and death.

Are you or someone you know experiencing any of the following:

- Times when people you trust or love hurt or harm you, or make you feel afraid?
- Feel put down or made to do things you don’t want to do?
- Does someone in your life use your things or money without your permission; keep you from seeing your doctor or friends; keep you from practicing your spiritual beliefs; threaten you?

If family members or caregivers are not treating you with respect and dignity, being hurt by someone is not your fault — do not blame yourself. You may want to consider these ideas to increase healing and connection.

- Talk to your doctor, spiritual leader, other helping professional or people you trust.
- Keep as physically active as possible and eat well.
- Enjoy music and movies, see people you love if you can, and participate in activities that make you feel happy and strong.

Sometimes family or friends take money or things that do not belong to them. No one should handle your money or accounts without your permission. Has anyone without your permission:

- Put their name on your bank account, ATM card or credit cards and withdrew money? Forged your signature on documents?
- Taken valuable items?
- Pressured you into changing your will or other financial documents?

If you or someone you know may have been financially exploited, you can contact the police, adult protective services or a civil lawyer for help.

Everyone deserves to be treated with dignity and respect.

Legacy Gifts

Legacy gifts to the Friends of CTBL are a vital way to ensure ongoing support for all the services the library provides to patrons. The Friends have established Eyes to the Future that honors and recognizes the generosity and vision of patrons, families and friends who have chosen to leave a legacy through their estates or other deferred gifts.

We invite you to become a member of Eyes to the Future. Enrollment in this honorary group is simply a matter of advising us about your plans to make a legacy gift, such as a bequest in a will or living trust, or designating The Friends of CTBL as beneficiary of an individual retirement plan, 401k or life insurance policy. The Friends of CTBL is a public 501 c 3 charity and the tax ID is 23-7243950.

Contributions to The Friends of the Colorado Talking Book Library and The Colorado Talking Book Library

An additional way to contribute to either the Friends or to CTBL is through a charitable bequest as part of a will or through life insurance. You do not have to rewrite your current document but can add a written amendment called a codicil. Such a bequest only becomes irrevocable at your death. Giving to the library helps support the programs and service we provide to our patrons and helps to secure the future.
AmazonSmile

The AmazonSmile Foundation donates 0.5% of the purchase price of eligible products to charitable organizations. If you make purchases through Amazon, try AmazonSmile and designate The Friends of CTBL as a recipient of charitable donations. Several patrons have already done this. Thanks!
